MAKARSKA RIVIERA

More than a destination

The Makarska Riviera is a part of the Croatian coast of the Adriatic Sea, about 60 kilometers (37.2 miles) long and only several kilometers wide. Sunny climate and long pebbly beaches make this region a popular tourist destination.

This is one of the most popular resort destinations in Croatia, the advantages of which include a mild Mediterranean climate, good beaches, a developed tourist infrastructure and the ability to combine beach holidays with mountain walks in the Biokovo massif.
